
Nearly Half Of Behavioral Health Organizations Considering Changing Their EHRs

Results of new survey data shows importance of effective technology in the changing health & human services market — learn more during the September 30th web briefing, “A Behavioral Health Collision At The EHR Intersection”

Gettysburg, Pa. (September 23, 2014) — What are executives of behavioral health organizations thinking about technology? Almost half are thinking about changing EHR systems. Learn about this finding – and more – from a just-completed survey of managers at more than 450+ behavioral health provider organizations during “A Behavioral Health Collision At The EHR Intersection,” a web briefing on September 30.

Join Michael R. Lardieri, LCSW, Assistant Vice President of Strategic Program Development, Behavioral Health Service Line at North Shore LNJ Health System & Ravi Ganesan, Chief Executive Officer of Core Solutions for a deep dive into the results of this just-completed survey. The survey focused on:

- EHR satisfaction
- Behavioral health organization executive motivations for looking at new technology solutions
- The top 3 cost categories for failed EHR implementation and operations
- Increased demand for the innovative use of technology

In addition to presenting the survey findings, Mr. Lardieri and Mr. Ganesan will present Core Solutions’ newly-developed behavioral health maturity roadmap for making the post reform transition.

This 90-minute executive web briefing, “A Behavioral Health Collision At The EHR Intersection,” is scheduled for September 30, 2014 at 2:00pm EDT. To learn more about this executive web briefing, or take advantage of free online registration, please visit: <http://www.openminds.com/event/behavioral-health-collision-ehr-intersection/>

All registrants will receive (at no charge and regardless of attendance) a recording of the webinar and an electronic copy of the presentation slides at its conclusion.
